Emsworth Resident to row Atlantic

Not many people would choose to spend this Christmas bobbing around in a 23-foot boat in mid-Atlantic, 1500 miles from the nearest land, totally alone. But that's exactly what Roz Savage, a 37-year-old former management consultant now living in Emsworth, is planning to do. She will be the only solo female competitor in this year's Atlantic Rowing Race setting out on 27th November to row from the Canaries to Antigua.

So why is she doing it? "I spent 11 years working in an office in London," she says. "But I felt there had to be more to life. I've left it relatively late to discover my adventurous side, but I'm having enormous fun preparing for the Atlantic row and I'm looking forward to what I hope will be a life-changing experience."

Her state-of-the-art carbon fibre boat has been fitted out at the Dolphin Quay Boatyard in Emsworth, where the skilled craftsmen have devised an innovative foot-steering mechanism and installed a solar-powered electrical system. She will use a satellite phone link to post daily updates and photographs to her website.

Roz hopes to use her row to raise £30,000 for The Prince's Trust. You can donate to the charity and follow her progress during the race via her website, www.rozsavage.com
